

Exploration

Reaching and touching the bubbles
Tracking the bubbles
Making a blowing/raspberry noise when PHV starts blowing the bubbles
Touching the leaves and grass in the garden
Pushing the swing

Anticipation

Watching PHV blowing the bubbles and squinting his eyes in anticipation of the bubbles coming towards his face
Vocalising and smiling for more bubbles
gazing towards PHV

Realisation

Vocalising & crying out when PHV arrives
Watching PHV set up, while checking in with mum by sitting with her
Turning to a novel noise made by PHV (rustle of the survival blanket, click-clack toy)
Turning to the light wand looking up and down to track the wand
Protesting through vocalising and walking away when the bubbles didn't come quick enough

Persistence

Sustaining visual attention for long enough for PHV to blow the bubbles towards him.
Reaching forwards to touch the bubbles floating towards him and then popping them

Engagement model WOW recording

Name: T

Date: 19/05/2022 9.30-10.15 am

Context: In the morning, at home in the living room with mum and portage home visitor (PHV). Distractions are minimal e.g. TV turned off, no books to flick or toys around

Initiation

Kicking out towards his mum to request his feet to be squeezed
Making eye gaze, smiling, and vocalising as a response to bubbles and then to request more
Opens door of the pantry to request food
Bangs on patio door to request to go outside
Makes eye gaze towards the TV remote and to the TV to request for the TV to go on